"THE ONLY THING CONSTANT IS CHANGE"
Unknown author

Perhaps never before in our history has change been more relevant in every aspect of our lives as it is right now. But, how do we reach the altitude to have the vision to lead while maintaining the focus to survive and thrive? The change reshaping our world calls for urgent action; demanding we master the:

Business of Change

Stuart Gelles has spent over 25 years coaching teams and individuals in communication skills, teamwork and self-awareness to effectively manage change and produce results. He does this by having individuals become aware of their behavior, their co-workers' perspective and reach perspective that fits into the company's goals. He is particularly adept at working with teams to boost creativity and effectively manage the sales process.

His "Business of Change" Model provides new paradigms of leadership success and solutions for life. Stressing the importance of altitude and reinvention, Gelles' work provides clients with a renewed creative perspective to meet the constant challenges of change, while increasing productivity and results. Critical in this environment, specific focus is given to energizing sales teams through new and effective approaches to developing interpersonal and communication skills leading to win/win results with customers.

Stuart has consulted with top executives and their teams at a wide range of international Fortune 500 companies from financial institutions to media companies including UBS, Yahoo, NBC, Conde Nast and CNN. At CNN his coaching with the CNN Financial News Management Team and CNN Executives spearheaded the launch of The CNN Financial News network both on television and online.

Business of Change

“So many of us compartmentalize our lives into the domains of family, relationships, career, spirituality and leisure activities-- rather being committed to achieving a balance between them all. Once this optimum balance is successfully accomplished, tremendous personal power is unleashed and there are lifelong benefits. Realizing, promoting and integrating social, emotional and professional competencies are vital for a healthy life. This creates a sense of aliveness and passion for life which all of us strive for. No matter what the forces of change may bring, the dynamics of this reinvention and the impact of a renewed ‘human architecture’ can, in fact, last a lifetime!”

Stuart Gelles

Stuart's forthcoming book, 'LIFE INC: success at the business of life!' is based on more than 25 years of motivational, sales, and high level corporate training and consulting. Focusing on the art of balance and re-invention, Stuart has guided tens of thousands towards successfully achieving their goals and fulfilling their lifelong dreams.

This body of work utilizes a multi-dimensional model, Stuart refers to as "THE SOURCE MODEL." It works by integrating the emotional ('BE-ER'), spiritual ('DREAM-ER') and physical ('DO-ER') components of our personalities and the dynamics of human behaviors, with a neutral perspective through which to evaluate and view life. Learning this technology has made the difference for individuals personally and professionally... transforming individuals, families, careers and entire organizations.

Stuart's methodology can be customized for any audience composed of people wanting to improve their leadership skills and life skills and is especially appropriate for:

1. Large Corporations or Small Business Owners
2. Executives, managers and employees of all levels
3. Individuals and organizations...facing personal and professional challenges
4. Motivational Sales conferences-- mastering sales strategies and increasing productivity
5. HR groups and associations
6. The challenges and dynamics of 'The Business of Change' and its impact on Individuals and companies.

Testimonials:

"Stuart trained our staff at a tough time of layoffs and low morale. He energized the team and had them re-ignite their passion for their jobs and working with each other. In particular, he had them understand how we filter communication based on what we value and how that might not be how the other guy sees it. This was crucial for opening up communication and having our teams effectively work with each other."

Craig Forman, CEO & founder, MyPrimetime

"I headed up the editorial team of CNNfn. We worked with a diverse group of managers who were promoted into leadership roles with no management training. Because they were in high pressure jobs, they communicated with each other very abruptly and protected their own turf. Stuart helped us to understand and respect each other's diverse points of views and work together as a team. We did this in a very short period of time. It was an amazing experience."

Debra Kocher, VP,CNN
